

Brand & Design Guide
for DealNest

A working reference for how DealNest looks, writes, and behaves — compiled directly from the live product: its logo asset, its Tailwind tokens, and the copy already shipping in the app.

OVERVIEW

What DealNest is, and how it decided to look

DealNest is a mobile-first directory of local store promotions: shoppers browse and save deals near them, store owners run a merchant dashboard, and admins moderate listings. The design works as a pocketable, one-thumb tool first.

The nest is the idea

The mark is a “nest egg” — a bowl holding two eggs, cut through with the diagonal strokes of a percent sign. The pitch is in the image: a safe place where savings are gathered and kept.

Teal bridges the mark's two colors

The logo pairs a blue egg with a green egg. The product's primary color, teal, sits chromatically between them — every gradient runs teal → emerald, echoing rather than replacing the duotone.

Cards over chrome

Almost no visual furniture — no rules, no decorative dividers. Structure comes from white rounded cards on a soft grey field, each a self-contained unit: a store, a deal, a stat.

One system, two moods

Customer screens run bright and rounded (teal, generous corners). The admin console swaps to a dark slate ground with the same teal accent — same system, different register.

COLOR

Palette

Teal is the one color DealNest spends deliberately. Everything else is quiet neutral, plus a fixed set of category and status colors that carry real meaning.

COLOR

Category system

Every store belongs to one of eight categories. Each gets a fixed tint pair — soft fill + saturated icon color — so a category reads instantly, before anyone reads the label.

TYPOGRAPHY

One typeface, worked hard

DealNest sets everything in Inter, from the hero greeting down to a timestamp. Hierarchy comes entirely from size and weight, never from switching faces.

The nest egg

A bowl of two eggs, drawn as thin outlined strokes, with the % of a discount cut diagonally through the weave. “DEAL” sits in regular weight against a bold “NEST.”

DO	Place the mark on white or the app's light neutral ground. This is the only ground it's been drawn for.
DO	Scale the full lockup no smaller than 56px tall — the smallest size actually shipping, in the app header.
DON'T	Recolor the mark. Its blue/green duotone is fixed — it is never rendered in the product's teal.
DON'T	Use it on a dark or busy background. There is no reversed variant yet.

ICONOGRAPHY

lucide-react, at fixed sizes

One icon library, drawn as a thin outline. Stroke weight marks navigation state; a small closed vocabulary is reused for the same idea everywhere it appears.

CONTENT & VOICE

How DealNest talks

Warm but plain, second person, never cute(keep things professional). Prices are always Rand, to two decimals. Real copy from the app, organized by the moment it appears in.

CORE RHYTHM

MOTION & ACCESSIBILITY

Small, respectful movement

Motion confirms an interaction, never decorates one. Every item below is already enforced in code, not aspirational.

Hover lift

Cards rise 2px and their shadow steps from sm to lg on hover — the only motion on a static list.

Reduced motion, honored globally

One rule in index.css disables every skeleton pulse under prefers-reduced-motion: reduce.

Focus is always visible

Inputs and controls get a 2px teal outline on keyboard focus — never suppressed.

44px minimum touch target

Icon-only buttons (log out, save, bookmark) are sized to at least 44×44px.

Errors announce themselves

Form errors carry role="alert" and aria-live="polite".

Modals trap focus, close on Escape role="alertdialog", focus moves to Cancel on open, Escape closes.

THE END☺
